

UNDERSTATED GLAM

Sometimes the best reason to set a design project deadline is for an upcoming event. For a young Connecticut family with three girls under the age of 9, Connecticut-based designer Beth Krupa set out to design a dining room and living room that was timeless yet infused with a bit of color and a dose of glamour – all in time for an upcoming family party. Keeping the existing hardwood flooring and beautiful woodwork, Krupa planned to redo four living spaces for this family that loves to entertain with style.

The client wanted a comfortable suburban home that was approachable and fresh, with a bit of glamour and a unique and unexpected style for the otherwise typical New England-style area. Designing the family room and dining room with a pale palette of both ivory and gray neutral fabrics, color was introduced through art, upholstery and accents. The redecorated rooms feel fresh, young and relaxed, with the addition of stylish Lucite accent pieces and a sputnik-shaped retro light fixture and objects that balance out the serene touches.

The family room is drenched in natural light, so to embrace the architecture and add symmetry to the room, curtains were added in an embroidered geometric Kravet fabric with a clean cornice of Candice Olson for Kravet textured suede-like fabric. Generous seating areas include an L-shaped sectional sofa done in a nubby cream fabric and two low tufted side chairs that provide a mod, retro feel. Bringing in color through graphic pillows, a brightly upholstered ottoman with Lucite legs and decorative accessories, the room is easy to relax in.

The dining room features a neutral monochromatic palette and glamorous touches, which provide a serene escape for spending time as a family during meals. Krupa upholstered Kravet Georgetown side chairs in a soft silk-like texture with a chenille bias welt and added dressmaker details with a button trim running down the back. Other sophisticated touches include a crystal chandelier, a gold carved mirror and subtle tonal geometric patterned carpet.

Glamorous, sleek and serene, the dining room and living room Beth Krupa designed for this Connecticut family set the stage for welcoming and entertaining friends and family for years to come.
